PRESIDENT WILSON'S

Recommendations to Democracy and All Progressive People.

The question of supreme importance in official and political circles in Washington is whether the next House will be in full accord and sympathy with President Wilson and his policies. The preponderance of impartial opinion is that it will. The impartial observer can see no reason why there should be a change in the majority of the House. He points to the unparalleled record of legislative achievement of eighteen months under the Wilson administration. He calls attention to the downward revision of the tariff in the interest of the people, the enlargement of the free list and material reduction on the finished product the passage of the income tax, whereby the burden of taxation was shifted from the backs of those least able to the shoulders of those best able to bear it—from productive industry to accumulated wealth, to the banking and currency law which proclaims the death of the Money Trust and makes it impossible for a few financial bandits to concentrate the money of the country in Wall Street; the passage of the Alaska coal land bill, which provides for a system of leases under competitive bidding, of the vast coal fields of Alaska, which for eight years the Guggenheim interests had practically tied up; the adoption of a scientific conservation policy under which our natural resources are made available to honest settlers, while monopoly is rendered impossible; to these and various others he refers, which he contends constitute in the aggregate a record of constructive legislation that has never been equaled by any other Congress in the history of the republic. He contends that any member of Congress who remained at his post of duty and was faithful to the interests of the people is entitled to be returned by an increased vote. He holds that our public conscience, which has been partially atrophied by disuse, is now being fully awakened, and the result is party lines are being obliterated, political prejudices are dying and a higher and broader sense of duty is taking their place.

This change must naturally redound to the interests of representatives who have discharged their duties with strict fidelity to the people's good.

The impartial observer, who is found everywhere in Washington, concludes that under present conditions, the failure of the people to elect a House in sympathy with the President would prove themselves unworthy of the great trust reposed in them by popular government and reflect upon their own honesty and intelligence. To the President's tact, patience and wisdom he attributes the fact that we are not now involved in the European war.

And the same impartial observer includes among those who have stood by President Wilson in "watchful waiting," as in all other essential matters, is the member from the Nineteenth Pennsylvania—Warren Worth Bailey of Johnstown.

Are You A Winner?

You must be--no determination has abated by the size of the pile of answers to the contest

The tempest rages still in the great shower of guests coming down at every mail. If the week day doesn't furnish time for the great hunt of words, the reflective Saturday and Sunday evenings must furnish the time, for Monday brings the results in the mails.

TABERNACLE ASSURED

Ministers and Churches Join in Extending Call to Rev. Hamilton and Party.

At a meeting last Monday of the Bedford Ministerial Association, of which Rev. J. Albert Eyer is president and Rev. G. W. Faus, secretary, it was unanimously decided to invite Evangelist Hamilton and his musical director, Prof. C. B. Gould, to conduct a Tabernacle meeting in Bedford beginning on Sunday, November 15. In this action the ministers have the hearty and almost unanimous endorsement of their several churches. That so many of the churches of our town have been able to get together in a general movement looking toward the religious uplift and betterment of the community is evidence of a growing spirit of Christian fraternity, and is cause for devout thanksgiving. To the churches in Bedford and throughout the county not represented in the ministerial association, as also to the general public, a most cordial invitation is extended to join in these meetings.

In other communities people gather to these meetings from far and wide, why not here? There has been no other movement within our state in the last year or two that has attracted so much attention, been fruitful of so much good and elicited so much favorable comment from both the religious and secular press as these Union Evangelistic Tabernacle meetings, so many of which have already been held throughout Pennsylvania, as well as in other parts of the country. Among the successful evangelists engaged in these meetings in our own State are Billy Sunday, Dr. Stough, Dr. Biederwolf and their helpers; Hamilton and Gould, Nicholson and Hemminger, and Johnson and Weaver.

In scores of towns these great evangelistic campaigns have rivaled the county fairs in attracting and holding the crowds. The converts from these meetings are numbered by the tens and hundreds of thousands, and their influence for good in many other directions is inestimable. With large expectations and great enthusiasm, therefore will the people of our churches enter into all the plans for Bedford's coming meeting. At the session of the ministerial association on Monday the following committees were appointed:

Tabernacle—Dr. S. F. Statler, William F. White, J. Reed Irvine, William Weisel, B. F. Madore, F. C. Pate, J. C. Bortz and Charles Debaugh.

Secretaries—Miss Mame Fletcher, Miss Gertrude Middleton, Mrs. J. C. Russell and Miss Lizzie M. Bain.

Already the Tabernacle Committee have had a meeting, and are considering eligible locations, and getting their plans under way for the construction of the building. Everybody who can drive nails will be given an opportunity to donate some labor toward the building, it only a few hours. In many communities the tabernacle has been built almost entirely by volunteer labor. Further announcements as to the progress of the work, and the plans of the various committees will be made from the pulpit next Sabbath, and also through all the committees, except the tabernacle committee, is called for the purpose of organization at 3 o'clock upon Sunday at the Presbyterian Church.

Stomach Troubles Quickly Cured

People go on suffering from little stomach troubles for years, and imagine they have a serious disease. They over-eat or over-drink and force on the stomach a lot of extra work, but they never think that the stomach needs extra help to do the extra work.

If these people would take Tonaline Tablets regularly they would be a great big help to the stomach in its strain of over-work. No matter what you eat or drink Tonaline tabs sweeten your sour stomach and stop gas belching in five minutes. The heaviness disappears, and the stomach is greatly aided in its work of digestion.

Tonaline

Tablets not only promptly relieve all distress, but if taken regularly will absolutely cure indigestion by building up the flabby, overworked walls of the stomach and make them strong enough to digest the most hearty meal. $1 for a 50 days' treatment. Mailed by American Proprietary Co., Boston, Mass.—Adv. 23 Oct. 21.

VARIOUS DOMINATING FURS

Tulle, Lace and Glittering Sequins Combine

NOTICEABLE FOOTWEAR

New York, October 20.

In suits, both long and short coats are shown in a wide variety. Russian lines are among the most favored. Long coats of broadcloth are worn over skirts of velvet, satin, duvetyne and broadcloth. These have collars, high at the back of the neck, trimmed with fur, fur cuffs and often abound of fur around the hem.

Most of the suits and costumes are made of velvet, broadcloth, Broad-tail cloth, duvetyne, serge and gabardine, while combinations of satin and faille, velvet and fur-cloth are the season's favored characteristics.

A Smart Combination of Net and Velvet

The full ripple skirt is seen in many attractive models, the ripple being caused by the circular cut of the skirt. This skirt is very short and full at the hem but closer at the hips. The full circular skirts and models, in which box and side pleats are introduced, are becoming popular.

The hip-length suit coat is observed in several clever styles, and is often finished at the lower edge with a broad band of fur. Various types of long coats show a fullness at the hips, and, over all, hovers a suggestion of militarism which will probably materialize later.

The redingote and moyen age styles, so closely allied in design, are to be seen developed in various combinations of materials. For instance, a model with a redingote of taupe-colored broadcloth had sleeves and the foundation skirt of self-toned bengaline. The redingote neck, sleeves, and hem were trimmed with bandings of sable fur. Another combination which was stunning was of embroideries combined with satin.

Tulle, lace and chiffon play an important part in the development of evening dresses and are well adapted to the various tunics which are worn over skirts of satin and silk. The cuirass, the moyen age, and the redingote styles are all shown in tulle, Chantilly lace, or elaborate jet embroideries combined with satin.

The all-black evening gown is having a great vogue, for the soft laces and clinging satins and silks in which it is developed are vastly more becoming than when the stiffer styles held sway.

Panne and chiffon velvet may be had in all the newest shades of colorings, conch-shell pink, oil blue and sea green, are successful when used for evening gowns of pronounced simplicity.

The furs of the season are rich and regal, and conform to the styles in a manner which evinces the new art of the furrier. A handsome wrap of chinchilla was made with a flaring lower line. The sleeves were large and at the hands were full into a cuff of the fur. At the back was a cape which rippled. I lifted it, to see if underneath the cape the wrap was of fur, and found it merely had a wide band of fur around the bottom attached to a foundation of lining.

Caracul and broadtail are favorite furs for coats and are trimmed with fox, dyed fitch, skunk and a new fur which is called "kit fox." A novelty fur is squirrel, dyed to look like kitten fur. One thick skin of the fur makes it dye very successfully and the result is that we see it made to imitate many things except itself.

Quite the latest shape in muffs is the melon-shaped muff. It is cut in melon-like pieces and has a frill around the opening of silk or velvet. This shaped muff is usually made of a short-haired fur, like chinchilla, kolinsky, or mink.

Besides fur, fur-cloth, plush and velvet are used for sets of muff and neck-piece and perhaps a hat. A charming set for the young girl is made of velvet. The toque is small and close fitting and has box-pleated ruche of velvet, lined with rose-colored satin, around it. The neck-piece is a box-pleated ruche of the velvet, also lined with rose-colored satin, and the muff is rather baggy in the center and has a box-pleated ruche of the velvet at the openings for the hand.

Monkey fur is having perhaps the greatest vogue of all furs for trimming. It is used as fringe around the bottom of tunics, around the bottoms of waists, on hats, where it is also used to cover the entire crown of a hat, looking quite like a head of black hair where the crown of the hat should be. It is used upon light and dark materials, upon velvet and broadcloth, or lace and chiffon, impartially.

In one illustration is shown a dress of blue charmeuse with a tunic of ecru net having a margot edge in gold thread. At the bottom this tunic is finished with a fringe of monkey fur. At the shoulder is a bright red rose.

A Frock of Metal Lace and Charmeuse Having a Fringe of Monkey Fur on the Tunic.

Where the moyen age or basque effect is not used in the designing of a gown, the wide girdle is added to give the effect of the basque. The dress, the first illustration, shows the effectiveness of this girdle. The waist is made of net and has a cape at the back of heavy lace which is also used for the high collar, wired to flare at the correct angle. The tunic, also of net, has a wide band of velvet

CONSUMPTION TAKES 350 PEOPLE DAILY

Over 350 people succumb to consumption every day in the United States. Science proves that the germs only thrive when the system is weakened from colds or sickness, overwork, confining duties or when general weakness exists.

The best physicians point out that during changing seasons the blood should be made rich and pure and active by taking Scott's Emulsion after meals. The cod liver oil in Scott's Emulsion warms the body by enriching the blood; it peculiarly strengthens the lungs and throat, while it rebuilds the resistive forces of the body to avoid colds and prevent consumption.

If you work indoors, tire easily, feel languid or nervous, Scott's Emulsion is the most strengthening food-medicine known. It is totally free from alcohol or any stupefying drug. Avoid substitutes.

14-42 Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J.

around its lower edge. The skirt is of velvet as is the wide girdle.

This wide girdle is a feature which will interest many women who are trying to think of some way to rejuvenate a last winter's dress. Made in silk to match or of a mildly contrasting color it will successfully give the required up-to-date touch.

The short dresses have brought out a new shoe in Paris and will no doubt do something of the kind here. It is high almost like a boot and fastens at the inner side of the ankle with a lacing which follows a straight line to the top of the boot.

CROWDING THE COLLEGES

Some of the colleges are giving out surprisingly large registration figures this fall. Columbia university, for instance, will have for the full academic year of 1914-15, a total of over 14,000 students. This is an increase of 1,500 over last year.

It was not many years ago that it was the rare exception for the boy or girl to go to college. In many high schools there would be no graduate to take higher education for years in succession. The youth who attempted it was looked at with wonder and admiration.

Today, going to college attracts less attention than graduating from a high school some years ago. In many, high schools a quarter of the graduates go to college, while more than a quarter additional must enter normal, technical, or business schools.

This host of young people march up to the college door, each representing some high hope or ambition. More often it is the parents' hope, rather than their own. To the student the first question is commonly, "Shall I be able to enter the fraternity?" or, "Can I make the football team?"

Back in some dusty and toiling business office is his father, secretly disappointed when the boy comes home with no honors, and interested merely in sports.

A college opportunity is not primarily taking certain studies or learning certain facts. More than anything else, it is coming in contact with the bright minds and original thought of competent instructors, men ripe in experience and intellectual power.

In ordinary life, young people are separated by differing interests from older men of ripe and rich thought. College life brings this contact of younger and older people in a common interest. Life is forever after seen by the student with more acute and spacious perceptions. Too bad so many young people never enter into this heart of the college course!

WE KNOW REZISTOL

Will Help You

To Regain Your Strength and Energy

Report of the Hotel Physician in a Leading New York Hospital on the Cure of Brain Fatigue and Nervous Exhaustion.

"A few years ago we considered that we were doing well if we cured 10 per cent. of the cases of Brain Fatigue and Nervous Prostration brought to us, but since the introduction of Rezistol into our hospital we cure more than 90 per cent. of all the cases in its various forms brought to us. It builds new tissues, gives new energy, new life, new blood and strength to any part of the body attacked by these diseases."

Rezistol is a powerful tonic nourishing food medicine, composed of valuable tonic stimulants obtained from vegetable drugs. Rezistol contains no narcotics or other dangerous drugs which merely deaden pain temporarily but give no permanent relief or cure the cause of disease.

Rezistol is a powerful body builder and blood maker; it is the best remedy known to the medical profession to enrich thin, watery blood and supply new rich blood to the whole body.

It will be found a most valuable remedy in cases of over stimulation in which the excessive use of liquor causes depression, dullness of the faculties or intoxication; it counteracts the depressing effects and restores the system to its normal condition.

FREE—To prove the wonderful merits of REZISTOL we will mail a large sample bottle for 25c in silver or stamps for postage, etc. Rezistol Chemical Co., Boston, Mass.—Adv. 3 Oct. 21.

THE ACHIEVEMENT OF THE CURRENCY BILL

Ever since the Civil War, it has been universally admitted that our currency and banking system was hopelessly unscientific. It was the outgrowth of war conditions, and should have been outlawed as soon as the war was over.

Yet although the Republican party was in power most of the time for the fifty years since, it never could get up the courage to tackle this abuse. The people did not realize the indirect suffering caused by a poor currency. The subject looked remote and academic. The bankers were not politicians, and could not pull wires enough to make the Congressmen jump.

At the same time the people suffered in a very real way. The worst result was the steady succession of panics and severe business depressions. There was wealth enough in the country to pay all debts, but people would get scared for fear there would not be enough currency, and would lock gold and United States notes up in safe deposit vaults. Every one would become frightened all at once. Banks would have to call loans, which meant bankruptcies and stoppage of factories, workmen were thrown out of work, merchants failed or saw their business go to pieces.

All these disasters were well known to the Republican party. Their ablest statesmen realized the mischief of the thing. But somehow the party was so divided between contending interests that it never could get anything done. The bankers wanted one central bank. The common people wanted something more like the law just enacted. Between these opposite factions, it became impossible to get action.

Just as soon as the Democratic party gained power, led by the splendid initiative of their great President, and our Democratic Congressmen, among them Warren Worth Bailey and A. Mitchell Palmer, all such differences were smoothed out of the way, and a great constructive and epoch making act was passed, which should forever remove the sufferings caused by currency panics. It is the greatest financial act in the history of the United States.

21,976 Fords Sold In September

The Ford Motor Company announces that in the month of September there were sold and delivered 21,976 FORD cars. This was a gain of 11,479 cars over September, 1913. This is significant, not only because it shows that the FORD production is rapidly being increased to meet the stupendous influx of orders, but also because it demonstrates that the Ford Motor Company is maintaining the 300,000 car-schedule necessary to give Ford purchasers between August 1st, 1914, and August 1st, 1915, a share of Ford profits.

JOHN S. WHETSTONE

We are in need of funds to run the campaign. If you have any generous gifts send them to Dr. Walter F. Enfield, Bedford, Pa., or to the Bedford Gazette Office, Bedford, Pa. Send money by personal check. Any one contributing a dollar ($1.00) or more to the State Democratic Committee, Harrisburg, Pa., will be given a handsome pocket piece by the committee.

Congressman Warren Worth Bailey will pass through Bedford County Saturday if plans now outlined materialize. He will probably reach Breezewood, 8:30 a. m.; Everett, 10:30 a. m.; Bedford, 12; Wolfburg, 2:30 and Schellsburg 3:30. He may make a few brief speeches to the people if necessary. He wants to meet as many voters as he can.

Do the people know that Brumbaugh and Lauder were the chief sponsors of the School Code which makes it possible to tax you 25 mills on the dollar for school purposes?

Do the people know that Brumbaugh and Lauder were the chief sponsors for the obnoxious vaccination law with which you have been vexed and tormented this and last year?

Do the people know that Brumbaugh is a believer of high taxation. Vote for John S. Whetstone if you want a farmer to make laws.

Penroselsm spent $14,000,000 in the Highway Department and $5,000,000 of that was actually spent on the roads, and $9,000,000 was spent to grease the pockets of politicians. Aren't you glad you voted against the $50,000,000?

Endsley, the Republican candidate for State Senator, has a son on the state road as foreman and he does not know any more about a road than a man in the moon. More grease for politicians. That is part of the $9,000,000.

Every Democrat of Bedford County, and of the State of Pennsylvania for that matter, should go to the polls on November 3rd and place his vote against the system which has so mercilessly taxed you, grafted your $9,000,000 in State road money and stole your $8,000,000 at the State Capitol.

President Wilson could have gotten by easier in the Mexican matter, had he been content with a procrastinating policy. The existing complications are simply the result of his sincere and determined effort to remove a dangerous source of irritation. This kind of frank and straightforward policy involves many difficulties, but it works out best in the long run.

As the Progressive party stands for change, and the Republican party is against change, only people of a very visionary point of view are expecting any union between such an oil and water combination.

Our Republican friends made much of the low exports and high imports prevailing during the earlier part of the year, when much the same conditions have been found in Canada under wholly different tariff conditions. The Republican party talked for fifty years about the defects in the banking and currency laws. The Democratic party acted, and cleaned out an intolerable situation and dangerous menace in less than a year.

The Republicans seem anxious to return to the old method of making tariffs, in which every manufacturer was given the amount of protection he thought he ought to have.

While the Republican party dodged the question of the development of Alaska, the Democrats took hold promptly and passed an act providing for the opening up of the territory without mortgaging it to the coal combines.

Business has been slow all over the country. Business has been slow all over the good this year, but the country has felt the effect of the corn failure last year. Now the war has upset everything. The Democratic party is not responsible for any of these conditions, but many people will try to prove that the results flowing from these conditions are the outcome of the Democratic legislation.

We invite the attention of the Republican Congressmen who have been blocking the administration's vigorous efforts to befriend commerce and industry in the European war crisis to the following paragraph in the Boston Advertiser, a Republican paper:

"We regret that we have heard hints from Washington, in the past few days, to the effect that some ambitious but not unusually gifted Republican Congressmen have made their plans to fight the administration bill, and to expose some of its 'glaring blunders.' Our friendly advice to such marplots would be to consult their own constituents first. We believe that the popular demand for an immediate outlet and avenue to new markets for American goods, and for new routes of supply to this country, in such products as the United States now lacks, because of the war of the nations, is practically irresistible. Any Congressman who for purely partisan reasons attempts to block the plans of the administration, will probably emerge from his popular chastisement a wiser if a sadder man."

AGAINST PENROSE, PROTECTION AND PLUNDER

On Saturday last former Senator Knox at the Manufacturers' Club damned the Wilson administration "up hill and down dale," not forgetting that $25,000,000 to Colombia. It appeared to be discreditable to Wilson and Bryan that they were willing to submit Colombia's claim to arbitration, though Secretaries Hay and Root had rejected that proposal. Many plain American citizens are glad that Wilson and Bryan plead: "Guilty, no extenuating circumstances!"

The former Senator is naive; he avoided "attempting to go into the history of our differences with that government * * * differences which have existed owing to circumstances occurring at the time Panama became a sovereign, independent State." It is a rule with eminent lawyers not to open themselves gratuitously to attack, just as boys learn not to monkey with a buzz saw. Those who wish to know the history of our difference with Colombia are advised to read in the North American Review for February, 1912, "A Chapter of National Dishonor," by Leander T. Chamberlain. Mr. Knox's hesitation to tackle that subject will be understood. It has an unpleasant odor.

Permit the exhibition of another specimen brick thrown at Wilson: "With the establishment of the provisional government at the end of the revolution, negotiations on the Chinese loan were renewed. This was the position of prestige, influence and vantage enjoyed by the United States in Chinese affairs when our present administration entered upon its duties. Immediately, however, members of the incoming regime declared war on all this, and to its destruction they addressed the mighty process of their virgin minds."

Mr. Knox forgot to tell his audience why the President declined the request of American bankers that he should request them to lend money to China. If he had so requested, then, in case of default by China the U. S. A. would have been expected by the trustful bankers to collect their bad debt, to invade China, to spill American blood, to control Chinese custom houses, to continue oppressive taxes upon unfortunate peasants, or, as the President tactfully expressed it, "to touch their administration." On that occasion the President exemplified the difference between a statesman and a catspaw—between a philosopher and a money-grubber. Wilson and Scrooge are not in the same class; Scrooge cannot understand Wilson.

Knox stopped his knocks in order to boost With becoming modesty he Roosevelt and Pinchot at Altoona Tuesday night, Oct. 27th.

A special train will return to Bedford after the meeting, leaving Altoona at 11 o'clock.

comes to the reason for his presence on that platform:

"May I now speak personally regarding our Republican candidate for election to the Senate? I have known him intimately for a great many years. He has enjoyed during his term of service in the Senate, the confidence and respect of every Republican President. Each and all have sought his advice and his assistance in working out the public measures and policies for which they stood."

That, in a nutshell, is why a growing number of Pennsylvanians are against Penrose, "protection" and plunder.

THE WILSON TRUST POLICY

No one really understands the trust problem. It is a matter of guess work that would happen in any case. The Democratic policy does not accept the great overgrown trusts as a necessary and very likely beneficial development, as does the Roosevelt theory. It sees great evils in those vast monopolistic combinations. It has tried and is trying to prevent some of the more obvious of these evils.

Nor does it make the error of the Taft administration, in forcing through prosecutions only to be satisfied with merely nominal results. It amounts to nothing to shift over securities on paper, to change money from some one's right hand pocket into his left, to draw a chalk line across an office, and call it one corporation on one side, and another business on the other, expecting the two separated concerns to engage in competition.

The Wilson policy makes no attack on private property. If properly understood, it will not hurt business. It does call in question the tendency to great monopolistic combinations. It tries to protect the small producer in his chance to compete.

On the face of it there seems to be some economy in these great combinations. Duplications and unnecessary services are saved.

But there are many compensating losses. There are too many high salaries, too many figure heads. The directors become too far removed from the individual stockholder. They get reckless with other people's millions, and toss them around as you would throw dog biscuit to a yellow pup. If there are economies in these big consolidations, the consumer rarely gets the benefit.

The day of the small producer, with his sharp attention to detail, his response to personal ambition, is not over. The Democratic party intends to protect him and see that he has his chance.

A POOR TIME FOR PARTISANSHIP

Republicans in Congress who thought the war tax bill will not find it easy to justify their action. In the House their opposition did not amount to much. In the Senate it was vexatious, but not disastrous.

To seize this opportunity to make an insincere demand for economy will neither deceive the people nor reduce expenditures. The extravagance, of which there is just complaint, is cumulative and is chargeable in a large degree to Republicans. It was the Republicans who, long glorying in a billion-dollar Congress, finally invented a two-billion-dollar Congress. As the present excessive outgo was not the result of the recklessness and waste of a single session, so it is idle to expect that far-reaching retrenchment, no matter how desirable, can be accomplished in a few weeks by partisanship alone.

A Republican attack upon prodigality at this time will be interpreted as a political maneuver promising confusion and mischief and nothing else. No American party can hope for lasting advantage at the expense of national financial integrity or as a result of intensifying the commercial and industrial difficulties that have resulted from war not of our making.—The New York World (Ind.).

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC BUSINESS

Business has not been good in Europe since the Balkan war started. The fear of the struggle that now has broken loose cast its shadow over business enterprise. All this reacted on this country. It had some little effect on our export trade previous to the war, all of which will promptly be laid up to the Democratic tariff by the cheerful imaginations of Republican orators.

The very large imports of beef from Argentina, made possible by the new tariff, did not reduce the price here. It was not expected that they would, in view of the rapid decline in number of American cattle, and the increase of population. But the added supply from South America must have helped keep meat prices stationary.

In spite of the awful predictions of disaster to the woolen industry under the new tariff, it has been doing very well all the year. With free wool and American enterprise and skilled labor, it should be able to open up many new markets previously closed to our goods.

It was only a few months ago that conservative Republican papers were declaring that the "politically appointed" federal reserve board would ruin the financial affairs of the country. They seem to ignore the fact that the United States always got along fairly well under a "politically appointed" Supreme Court. The appointments made to the reserve board were so evidently fit that not a peep is heard against it. It is organizing the forces that hereafter will make currency panics as unknown in this country as in Europe.

The Democratic trust legislation has not gone as far as radical members of the Progressive party expected. But at least it stops many dangerous practices. It warns Big Business that the tendency toward consolidation has gone too far, and that those who wield the great power of these corporations should exercise their authority with regard to the rights of the small producer.

NO MUD-SLINGING FOR CONGRESS

It is not necessary in this campaign to sling mud at any of the aspirants for the Congressional seat now held by Representative Bailey. It is not a question of personality. It is one of service.

So far as Representative Bailey is concerned, the record of performance is pretty well known. He has given unflinching support to President Wilson on all the vital measures in the administration program, including reduced tariff taxes, currency, reclamation, conservation, trust control, tolls exemption repeal and emergency taxation to meet the grave conditions imposed by war in Europe.

Do the people of this district want to sustain President Wilson? Do they wish to see him complete the great task he has set himself? Are they interested in seeing him going forward from success to success during the remainder of his term as he has gone during the first half of it?

If so, they will not readily commit themselves to a course in this election which would tend to discredit the President and to arm his toes. Representative Bailey is the only candidate for Congress in this district who can be depended on to stand with the President. All the other candidates are frankly opposed to the administration and its policies. If any of the other candidates should be chosen, it is certain that he would do his utmost in the Sixty-Fourth Congress to hamper and bedevil the President in his remedial efforts for the benefit of the people.

President Wilson is entitled to a vote of confidence. And the only way in which this can be given in the Nineteenth district is by re-electing the sitting member. And over and above the claims of the administration, Representative Bailey is fairly entitled to consideration in his own right.

SIMPLY BREATHE IT

That's the Way You Use Hyomei, the Safe Catarrh Remedy.

The most pleasant, easiest, harmless, and the really sensible method for the cure of catarrh is Hyomei, which can be used from any drug store. Just put twenty drops of the liquid in the small inhaler that comes with every complete outfit, then breathe it. A few minutes' use almost instantly clears the head and stops that annoying sniffing.

When using Hyomei every particle of air that enters the breathing organs is charged with an antiseptic, healing balsam that destroys the catarrh germs stops the unclean discharges from the nose, relieves the irritation and quickly heals the sore and inflamed tissues. The first day's use of Hyomei will show a decided improvement no matter how distressing the trouble.

Catarrh, which usually begins with a neglected cold, often becomes a very serious ailment, so don't wait but start using Hyomei today—it is inexpensive and F. W. Jordan, Jr., always sells it on the "No-cure-no-pay" plan.—Adv. Oct. 19-24.

Free Sale of Patented Goods. Republicans Demoralized, Paralyzed, Demonized.

Is it fair play to the purchasing public that the owner of a valuable patent, which in itself is a direct grant of monopoly by the Government, should have the further privilege of stipulating, when selling the patented article, that supplies used in connection with the patented monopoly must be of a certain kind and must bring a certain price? The existence of this legal privilege in many far-reaching instances has vastly extended the scope of patents—has made monopolies of monopoly.

Is it fair play to permit the manufacturing proprietor of a valuable article to sell the article with iron-clad restrictions requiring that the purchaser shall not deal in or use articles manufactured by a competitor? This has been done on a large scale by such gigantic corporations as the Shoe Machinery Company and the General Electric Company, all fostered and promoted by a Republican party which has flinched the people and clouded the fact for years. No wonder you pay a high price for poor shoes and clothes and articles of food, and it serves every one with just the kind of a gouge he ought to have who has been voting the Republican ticket. When he opens his eyes he can open them wide enough maybe to see his hard-earned money going out of his pocket dollar after dollar, in rapid succession into the pocket of some rich manufacturer who has helped to pass the Republican tariff and kill the bills for the laborer or farmer.

The Republicans have nothing to say. They cannot even get up courage enough to write a campaign book against Wilson and the Democratic party. There never has been such demoralized, paralyzed, demonized and unchristianized Republican party since it was born under the sin of protection, defection, and special privilege infection.

Vote for the farmer, John S. Whetstone, for the Legislature. Let the others "go to grass" awhile.

Such practices as the two thus indicated are known in trade language as "tying contracts." Thanks to the all-summers labors of Congress, "tying contracts" are now included in "unfair competition" and are prohibited by the anti-trust statutes of the United States.

PRACTICAL TOWN PROMOTION

The question is often asked, what practical things can be done to advertise our town.

In some places the citizens wear "booster" buttons—except when they go out of town where the advertising might do some good. Campaigns for new industries are very common, requiring interminable patience, usually a fund of money, and liberal treatment as to taxes and rent.

Some places take write-ups in trade papers. If these periodicals have a real circulation, this may have value. Frequently their circulation is confined to the people who buy the write-ups.

In some places business men unite in printing cuts of local scenes on their correspondence envelopes. If these cuts are attractive, the pictures tell a helpful story. Other towns prepare a brief statement of the advantages of the place and put it on their stationery. If this is well written, made up of facts instead of fine writing, it will also perform its mission. Many places put up big signs near the railroad station, with a town slogan. If the heart of the town's work can be concentrated in a few words, this has its effect.

The best way to advertise a town is by a general purpose on the part of its citizens to spread its good name and reputation on all possible occasions. Some people take every occasion to disparage and run down the home place. They think it shows discriminating judgment to speak in this slighting way. Such a town usually merits the disparagement that is given.

In other places, citizens are not ashamed to tell of the advantages they have at home. They commend their schools, churches, social life and business push. They send away pro-

FREEDOM OF DEBATE

Many people say that money can buy anything. You can order a court decision or an election, just as you buy a suit of clothes. They say newspaper support is for sale on the basis of advertising space. Also that college professors see a new light in matters of economics when donors come around with liberal views about endowment funds.

Major Wiener, an English graduate of Harvard, has just told that university that it will miss a gift of $10,000,000 from his estate, if it continues to harbor Prof. Munsterburg, who has been making such bitter attacks on the allies in the European war.

There are some things money can't buy. Even the most pathetic little rag of a country newspaper may have as much independence as the millionaire publisher. The editor's desk may be a dusty catch all of musty papers, his office unswept, his type battered. But that smoochy sheet where he speaks his editorial opinion is the one square foot on the planet where he is lord and master. Cash is no equivalent for his individuality. And the country editor has no monopoly of this independence.

Similarly a college plant and equipment may be a joke. The half-paid faculty may be rusty, seedy, threadbare. Or it may be an institution hoary with age and rich in art and architecture, yet needing millions to enable it to cope with modern life. Whatever the institution, it almost invariably cherishes its aloofness from the world of dollars and barter. It is one free spot where all opinions can contribute to the search of truth as the final standard of value.

The American people do not seem to sympathize much with Prof. Munsterburg's point of view. That is immaterial. Few of them would care to discipline him by depriving him of his job. It would have too obvious encouragement to the many interests that would find college opinion useful in their business.

A man never realizes how fond he is of brunettes until he marries a blonde.

BUTTERICK BUTTERICK

Butterick presents to the world the very cream of the successes among these successful designs. In selecting their Butterick styles women know that they are being given their choice from successes only.

And so we find that just as Butterick went ahead and produced style-leaders for the world during the Franco-Prussian War of 1870—so today, 44 years later, Butterick is still busily employed maintaining its world-supremacy.

It is a source of pride for American inventiveness and industry that Butterick, the first paper pattern the world ever saw, is still first in the appreciation of women.

PLANTING TREES

A correspondent asks this newspaper to say something on the question of planting trees.

Probably four-fifths of all trees set out are started in the spring. Then the droughts of summer come along. It never occurs to any one that a kindly pail of water once in a while would make the thirsty sapling feel better. The young trees die, and people conclude that it is all too much work.

Country Life in America, an authority on rural matters, recently printed an article in which it spoke of the excellent results that can be had by planting in October. It remarked that people postpone planting until spring, then when spring comes, they are so busy starting their crops and garden work, that the trees go over until another year.

Trees are the first and principal source of outdoor beauty. The meanest little shack on a side street gains some dignity, if it is well bowered with trees. The finest mansion your most artistic architect can put up looks coarse, bold, and staring, if without a background of trees.

Farmers realize too little how a good tree growth would beautify their land and add to its selling value. In a pennywise fashion they be grudge the few yards of earth that would be shaded by the foliage.

Even looking at the thing from a money point of view, they fail to realize how much handsome trees add to the selling value of an estate. There is a constant and growing stream of people coming out from the cities to buy country places. These people consider not merely the productiveness of the soil, but its physical attractions. Handsome foliage trees count as much as the best equipped barn.

What a dry and dusty thing a country road is without any shade! Trees can be profitably set out along the highways much more than people realize. There are hardy varieties that will live in almost any soil without attention. Where a public road can thus be sheltered, it gives a sense of human companionship and comfort to the most lonely neighborhood.

You will be pleased with our neat job work. Give us a call!

An Appeal to the People of Pennsylvania

It is in the interest of the public—whose chief concern is good service and safety—that the Extra Crew Law now on the Statute books of Pennsylvania and other States be repealed. This law causes a waste of $1,100,000 annually in the employment of unnecessary men on the Pennsylvania System alone.

No one is more concerned than the Pennsylvania Railroad Company in securing maximum safety on its lines. Every train on this railroad has a full crew, and this extra expenditure adds nothing to safety or public convenience. The same money had much better be spent to remove grade crossings, improve tracks, signals, and bridges, and buy steel cars. This extra crew law, which compels unnecessary expenditures, is one of the factors which menaces the ability of this Company to pay present rates of wages to that great body of employees whose activities are needed.

The Public Service Commission should see to it that all trains are properly manned. Such action would amply protect employees and the public. We appeal to the people in their own interest, we appeal to our employees in their best interest, to ask their representatives in the next Pennsylvania Legislature to repeal the Extra Crew Law.

President, Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

HON. A. MITCHELL PALMER
Democratic Candidate for United States Senator

We Have a President

We like to feel that Woodrow Wilson expresses in his own personality the good genius of this country.

The President's service to the nation within the past few months has been sufficient to make an entire four-year term notable.

War with Mexico has been averted through patient statecraft that persisted despite criticism, abuse and lack of faith.

A strike of trainmen on ninety-eight Western railroads has been prevented by the agreement of the contending parties to arbitrate. This strike would have been a catastrophe at any time; in view of other complications, it would have been immeasurably worse at this time. Credit must be given to the men and the managers for agreeing to get together, but this was not brought about until the President had entered the negotiations.

The placing of American business conditions upon a basis where the European disorders can affect them little if at all was at the instance of and with the cooperation of the administration, which is also to be credited with fathering a currency law that will prove most efficient in the present situation.

In the last three or four months it would have been distressingly easy for a Presidential blunderer to embroil or embarrass the United States. We have come through with credit and clean of unworthy compromises or entangling alliances.

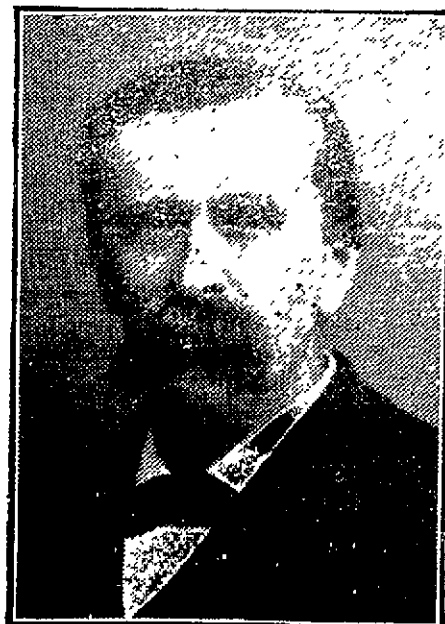

Thank God We Have a President.

REPUBLICAN THEORY

By Hon. Cyrus Cline, Member of Congress From Indiana.

A protective tariff is the chief tenet in the theory of civil government as advocated by the Republican party. Its solution for economic problems lies in its belief in the power to tax, and tax to the utmost. What is its so-called political principle on this subject? It is that certain classes of citizens engaged in business may be the recipients of special legislation that gives them advantage, and not only enables them to destroy all competition, but compels every citizen where that competition is destroyed to purchase in a market wholly controlled by the special favorites of legislation. As the Apostle Paul once said, "It is known of all men" that during the fourteen years the Republican party remained in power its financial support came from these favorite classes. No Republican denies that immense combinations in restraint of trade grew and prospered under Republican rule. Every great line of industry was financed by great wealth, moved upon a common plane in a single line with one single ultimate purpose and under the command and generalship usually of one head, like that of the Steel Corporation, under Gary, or the house of Morgan, that controlled the money and credit of the people of the republic. And these combinations extended to coal, iron, water power, manufactures and railroads. The chief purpose in every line of industry was to completely occupy the entire field of production, transportation and distribution. These mighty combinations had one common ground on which they assembled in the commercial world, namely, that of controlling production and fixing prices. To do this they interlocked their directorates so that the entire economic forces of society were involved in their power and shaped and fashioned at their will.

HON. WILLIAM T. CREASY

The failure and inability of the Republican party to meet these problems that grew out of a protective tariff, to construct a comprehensive currency system, its failure to invade the field of special privilege with supplementary anti-trust legislation has convinced the people that their only hope of preserving their liberties is to commit the country to the charge of the Democratic party.

To other horrors of peace should be added the man who brings with him to the restaurant table his dead and decomposing cigar.

Boston must have received a few psychological suggestions from Prof. Munsterberg for use on the diamond.

Palmer and McCormick in Pennsylvania

By Hon. William Jennings Bryan.

No State in the country is in greater need of the application of progressive Democracy to its governmental affairs than the State of Pennsylvania, and nowhere is a more earnest and vigorous battle being waged for the success of progressive Democracy.

It is many a day since the Democratic party in Pennsylvania has undertaken a contest with such spirit and optimism as marks the present fight. The battle has been on for a year. The campaign of education has been waged in every way possible, and a vigorous primary campaign, ending on May 19th with the nomination of Congressman A. Mitchell Palmer for United States Senator, and Vance C. McCormick for Governor, both progressive Democrats of the highest type, has served to arouse the party as it has not been stirred in a generation.

The Democratic party in Pennsylvania is fortunate both in its own candidates and those of its opponents. Congressman Palmer, who seeks election to the Senate, is one of the brilliant young progressive Democrats who have come to the front in the party's ranks during the last few years. For three terms he has been a member of the House from the Twenty-Sixth District of Pennsylvania, and his record is clean from beginning to end. He has made his way by force of his own ability, integrity and courage, and in spite of the unceasing bitter opposition of the people's enemies in his own district and State as well as outside. He has been marked for defeat by the great steel interests centered in his district every time he presented himself as a candidate, but he has won brilliantly each time, because of his unswerving loyalty to the interest of his constituents, among whom are numbered thousands of the workmen in the steel plants.

The machine leaders of his own and of the Republican party have also opposed him at every step. In Washington, he early rose to prominence as an orator in the House, and the promise shown by his first speeches on the tariff and other public questions was later fulfilled in the very important tasks assigned him by the Democratic leaders. He is now Chairman of the House Democratic caucus, a position second only to the minority leadership, and where he has done splendid service for the administration throughout his term.

He rose to national prominence at the Baltimore Convention in 1912, where, as the head and leader of the Pennsylvania delegation, he became the leader of the Wilson forces on the floor of the convention, and was an active and effective factor in placing the stamp of progressivism upon that convention. His latest service and one of his greatest is the authorship of the national child labor bill, now nearing passage in the House. It has the endorsement of every agency of social reform in the country.

A man of splendid presence, a fine speaker, an honest and able statesman, Congressman Palmer is one of those upon whom progressive Democracy in the country relies, and his progressive victory in Pennsylvania will bring joy to thousands upon thousands of progressive men of all parties throughout the country.

Vance C. McCormick, the Democratic candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania, has a splendid record of constructive public service, which has made so convincing an appeal to the voters of the State, that the progressive candidate for Governor has withdrawn from the ticket to make way for Mr. McCormick, who is now the candidate of both the Democratic and Washington parties.

Mr. McCormick, who is known by college men throughout the country as a star athlete at Yale and as one of the most conspicuous alumni of that institution, has carried the same characteristics of bulldog determination and fighting honesty and independence into his public service that he exemplified on the gridiron. Following his college course, he immediately took his place as one of the most progressive and capable business men of his own community. Heir to many large interests, he threw himself into the development of the agricultural and commercial interests in central Pennsylvania, and has done perhaps more than any single man for the encouragement of scientific and intensive farming, for the improvement of farm stock and farm methods and of farm life.

In politics he has been a constant factor for good, his course having been marked by independence and clean partisanship. He is the publisher of the Harrisburg Patriot, and he has used its columns to advance every worthy cause. His influence in the Democratic party is responsible, along with that of Congressman Palmer and other associates, for the reorganization of the party, which rid it of evil influences and placed it in the hands of progressive, high-minded men. His nomination in the May primaries followed a contest whose result vindicated his course, and he is today the candidate of the united forces of good government and clean citizenship in the Keystone State.

The issue between the Democracy and Penrose Republicanism is so clear in this fight, that there can be little doubt on which side the good citizens of Pennsylvania will take their stand.

A victory for Palmer and McCormick is of vital importance to the people of Pennsylvania. Every Democrat and independent progressive voter should take their place shoulder to shoulder with Palmer and McCormick, and put Pennsylvania in line on November 3 with the Wilson Democracy and honest government.

Congressional Elections

Washington, D. C., October 20.—The election of November 3 will result in the election of 435 members of the House of Representatives, and 32 of the 96 United States Senators. The Democrats now have a 2 to 1 majority in the House, and before the European war, it was expected that the Democratic majority would be cut to about 50 or 75, which, however, is a better working majority than the huge one we now have. But it is believed that the Democrats will retain practically the same majority as they now have as the American people believe in "standing by the President" when he is bearing such extraordinary burdens for them, as have been thrust upon him by the terrible European war. The Democrats have a majority of 10 in the Senate and it is believed this will be increased to 18 or 20 as Kansas, Wisconsin, Ohio, Illinois, New York and some others, are quite likely to return Democrats in the place of Republicans who were chosen in 1908 when the country went Republican for the last time.

VANCE C. McCORMICK
Democratic-Washington Candidate for Governor

"Golden Rule" is Now the Law for Business.

The administration's "trust program" does not consist of pages of legal verbiage, far away from the people. It is not an abstruse compilation of profundities understood only by lawyers—a few lawyers who capitalize their special knowledge, real or supposed, at huge profits to themselves.

The two new anti-trust laws—the Covington Federal Trade Commission Act and the Clayton Act—together with the Rayburn Railway Securities bill, which is to be finally disposed of next winter, go very close to the whole people. There is no misunderstanding them. They translate into plain statutory English views which in the past ten years have ripened from opinion into settled conviction among the vast majority of Americans. Fair play in business and industry was their inspiration and is their obvious meaning now.

Is it fair play when one corporation, richer and stronger than its competitor, cuts prices below production-cost in the weaker competitor's territory, though at the same time maintaining much higher prices for the same articles in other sections of the country, a stealing which was allowed to be perpetrated upon the innocent public for years and years under Republican administrations, and not only a stealing but a downright, low-lived smothering and raising of competitive business and creating a chance for monopoly which is the Republican policy? The new laws call this practice "unfair competition," and prohibit it in the "price discrimination" section. This unfair competition is banned by a sincere Democratic organization which works for the good of the whole people. The people should thank the Democratic party by a vote of confidence November 3rd, next.

For Humanity

In his cablegram to President Wilson, the German Emperor, Kaiser Wilhelm II, employed this phrase by way of making a point: "I consider it my duty, sir, to inform you, as the most reliable representative of the principles of humanity."

That Woodrow Wilson is the one man the warring nations of the world will turn to when the time comes to arrange peace is everywhere recognized.

There is so much dishonesty and so much of a grasping spirit in the business world, that investors have been slow to put money into railroad and industrial stocks. The Democratic Congress is of course responsible.

Business was slow in the steel and iron trades through the spring, on account of the delay in the railroad rate decision. The majority of the commissioners were appointed by President Taft, but the Democratic administration is held responsible for the delay.

Anyway, under this administration the time has gone by when the big combinations could get what they wanted merely by telephoning their friends on the floor of Congress.

President McKinley found out fourteen years ago that the high protective system was preventing this country from getting the foreign trade it should have. James G. Blaine learned the same fact ten years previously. But the Republicans never had the initiative or independence to act on the counsel of these wise leaders. If they gained power again, they would again tie up our manufacturers by high duties on raw materials and supplies used by manufacturers.

Republican administrations were substantially governed by the big moneyed interests. Their first purpose was to get conditions such that capital could make big dividends. The question whether the mass of the people were getting their share was secondary.

The period of Republican control up to 1912 was a carnival of stock watering, extortion by the trusts, and unjust tariffs. A Republican victory would mean an attempt to turn back the wheels of time and undo the work done the past years to curb these evils.

The thing for all of us to do is to re-elect Hon. Woodrow Wilson to the White House and see that the good work is continued.

One trouble in the world and father's telling us about it for fifteen years hence about the battle of the Aisne, is that it has not now appear that the world is now and fathers left.

WILLIAM N. McNAIR
Democratic Candidate for Secretary of Internal Affairs.

EXAMPLE OF THE U. S. A. MODEL FOR CIVILIZATION

Remarkable Tribute from Great London Paper to the Woodrow Wilson Brand of Diplomacy. Our Foreign Ambassadors Have Measured up to Their Great Positions. Win Foreign Approval.

A WISE FOREIGN POLICY

Washington, D. C., October 20.—The American brand of diplomacy under the administration of Woodrow Wilson has won the admiration of the world, and has placed America in the forefront of civilized nations. At home and abroad tardy recognition is being given the administration's wise foreign policy, along with deserved commendation of the activities of our representatives who are so ably looking after the interests of the civilized world in foreign lands where war is raging. Here are a few expressions, editorial and otherwise:

War-Making in the Dark

Asking the question, "Can Europe ever again tolerate the appalling peril of secret diplomacy?" the conclusion of the London Daily News is that "the example of the United States must hereafter become the model of the civilized world."

It is early in the present struggle to begin balancing the books, but one such expression as this gives us an accurate forecast of some of the accounts that are going to be settled, not by kaisers and kings, but by the people, when peace shall have been restored.

Monarchy has always sneered at American diplomacy as of the shirt-sleeve variety. Because it was open, direct and honest, it was pronounced uncouth. Because it refused to engage in intrigue, it was held to be deficient in skill. Because it kept faith, it was pitifully regarded as maladroit. But the worst of its offenses has always been publicity.

The war now raging in Europe is the direct result of royalty's secret diplomacy. For a generation past the great armaments there have been falsely represented as making for peace, when we all know now that they were making for war. Everything relating to supreme governmental policies has been secret except the existence of the colossal war machines and the crushing taxes which have sustained them.

In this way the censorships of peace have been almost as drastic as the censorships of war. A handful of men in each country knew what was going on. Hundreds of millions who are now arrayed against each other in battles as secret as the diplomacy that led to them had no more knowledge of the true situation than their relatives at home have now whether fathers, sons and brothers at the front are alive or dead.

To praise the American idea of diplomacy is to exalt democracy.

SHORT OF AMMUNITION

G. O. P. Has No Material for a Campaign Text Book—Futile to Criticise Wilson Administration—Party in Sorry Plight.

Washington, D. C., October 19.—Democrats were amused at the report circulated today that the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee will not issue a text book this year because of the failure of the committee to agree on the line of attack.

The split occurred, it is stated, when one element sought to assail the Underwood-Simmons tariff law and the banking and currency act. Several members of the Republican organization voted for these two measures, as did many other Republicans, and they refused to condemn laws which they had approved.

Republicans secretly admit that they have absolutely no basis for criticising the Wilson administration or the record of the Democrats in Congress, and least of all the tariff and currency laws, both of which have been commended to the country.

Until the European war drove them off the front pages of even stand-pat Republican organs, a small coterie of Republicans in the House and Senate crowded the Congressional Record with "panic" speeches, plainly intended for use in their text books.

But the hoped-for panic did not materialize and the minority has been at a loss for campaign ammunition. Opposition to the war revenue measure is now being used as eleventh-hour "talking point."

"The country is with Wilson and any attempt to criticise him on his record would only make us ridiculous," said one Republican today. "Unless the Democrats are apathetic in November or remain away from the polls because of overconfidence, I can see only a repetition of the result of two years ago."

"We can not attack the currency law, for its worth has been proved within the last few weeks. It would be foolhardy to attempt to convince the people that they should return to the Payne-Aldrich tariff classifications. They would laugh at us."

In the meantime the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee is keeping a force of committee employees busy filing orders for the Democratic text-book, containing the unassailable record of achievements of the Wilson administration.

Point

October 19.—The barn and hog pen of Robert Bridenthal was burned week before last. The fire occurred while Mr. Bridenthal was away from home. He had sold several cows and had taken them away. When he was on his way home he saw the fire and thought at first that it was his house. The origin is not known. The fire was discovered by Mrs. Bridenthal, who was at home alone. She ran to the barn and succeeded in getting a mule and two sets of gears out. The whole crop of grain, and some machinery, were burned. There was some insurance, but the loss is very heavy.

Fred Dennison lost a valuable mare recently. It is thought that she eat too many apples, oats and buckwheat, then drank too much water.

C. W. Blackburn will soon be ready to raise the addition to the house he is building.

Henry Kline has moved to Dr. Gump's house near Napier, and George Kimmell has moved into the house vacated by Mr. Kline, having bought the property in the spring.

Straws Show Democratic Gains

The Democratic State Committee, to substantiate its claims of growing strength for Palmer and McCormick through the State, made public yesterday several reports received at headquarters during the past few days concerning straw votes and canvasses and other items of news, showing a distinct drift of sentiment to the Democratic ticket.

One of the significant items was a straw vote reported from a trainmen's rest room in Altoona; of 60 Pennsylvania Railroad conductors, engineers and brakemen, only two favored Brumbaugh as against McCormick, and one of these was going to vote for Palmer against Penrose. Palmer received more than two-thirds of the votes cast for Senator in this gathering, Pinchot being favored by all the rest, with one exception.

Another item showing the great strength of Vance McCormick in his home community was reported from a borough in Dauphin County, which gave Taft 64 votes in 1912 to Wilson's 40 and Roosevelt's 36. Signed pledges of more than two-thirds of the voters of this borough for Vance McCormick were turned into headquarters. Palmer was reported to be running ahead of his competitors at the ratio of 7, 5, 4, Pinchot leading Penrose.

A third significant item was reported from Huntingdon County, the birthplace of Dr. Brumbaugh. Robert S. Seeds of Birmingham, Huntingdon County, a well-known lecturer, has offered his services on the stump to the Democratic State Committee, declaring that he is anxious to help to demonstrate to the people of the State that the voters of Huntingdon County, who are noted for their independence and intelligence, are not being deceived by the gang's scheme to present a respectable figure-head at the head of their ticket, in order to help Penrose to re-election and to retain his grip upon the State government.

In the same county Rev. A. R. Day of Alexandria, a well-known Presbyterian minister, has also offered his services to headquarters, declaring, like Mr. Seeds, that the issue in the State fight transcends personal considerations, and that it is more important that the Penrose machine be completely defeated and repudiated than that a personal friend should be chosen to office.

If betting odds are an indication of the general sentiment, there is every reason to believe in the growing strength of the Democratic cause. At Harrisburg, where the Republican organization is always lavish in its betting offers, and where its most stalwart rooters are stationed, three weeks ago money was posted by State job-holders at 3 to 1 on Brumbaugh. Several hundred dollars of this money was quickly gobbled up, and within a week the odds had fallen to 2 to 1. The Brumbaugh money was quickly covered, and the best that is now offered is even money on the State fight. There is no Penrose money in sight.

Some Harrisburg sports have been striving in vain to secure wagers against the proposition that McCormick will carry his own county. An interesting wager was one made by a well-informed Democrat, that of the ten counties, including Dauphin and the nine that adjoin it, McCormick will carry eight, though eight of the ten are normally Republican.

A striking fact in connection with the late registration was the very large number of unenrolled voters, and the further fact that the preponderance of the non-partisan vote is apparently in Republican strongholds.

Complete figures of the registration in Lebanon County show a non-partisan registration of 4,519, while the Republican enrollment is in the minority in the county by nearly 3,000. This county, which polled 10,585 votes in 1912, has a registration of qualified voters to the number of 13,695.

A TRIUMPH OF PEACE

At this time, when facts and appearances so strongly convey the impression that the world is given over to war, a triumph of peace is proved in the announcement of Secretary of State Bryan that twenty-six treaties have been signed, and eight others approved, between the United States and other countries, including the great powers now at war in Europe, providing that no hostilities shall be declared between this nation and any of these countries before an interval of a year shall have elapsed, to inquire into the matters in dispute, and the latter shall have been investigated by a duly qualified commission.

Here is a splendid victory for the peace principle gained under circumstances so intensely militating against it, and a great practical exemplification of the pacification policies of the Wilson administration, which have saved the country from war, and which are so brilliantly illustrated by the negotiations conducted by the Department of State, and which have resulted in the ratification of these treaties.—Buffalo Times.

The Wilson administration does not cross streams before it comes to them; but when it does come to them it goes right through.

Many a politician with wheels thinks he is the whole political machine.

HON. WARREN WORTH BAILEY "Placed His District on the Map" VOTE FOR BAILEY

It is coated even by his political opponents that Congressman Warren Worth Bailey has been very much "on the job" during the two years he has been at Washington. In passing judgment upon Mr. Bailey's activities an Allentown editor recently remarked that the Johnstown Congressman had "placed his district upon the map." While the Nineteenth Congressional district has long been on the map by reason of its industrial importance, Congressman Bailey has made it more of a power at Washington by reason of his endeavors upon the floor of the House and his unceasing labors as a member of the various committees upon which he has served.

Elected as a real progressive, the Johnstown Congressman has hewed to the line in his political endeavors. He has been a prominent member of the Wilson majority that stood with the President in the "watchful waiting" crisis. He was one of the men who was of great assistance to the administration in its great work of freeing the country from the grip of Wall Street by means of the enactment of the new banking law that has preserved the national credit intact in the face of the greatest war the country has ever known. While in general agreement with the policies of the administration, Congressman Bailey has at various times waged a strong fight in the caucus against the policies of the party leaders. He opposed a special war tax measure, declaring that any deficiency should be met by a careful paring of governmental expenditures. He opposed the party battleship program, declaring that for this country to begin building dreadnaughts with the idea of acquiring the most powerful navy afloat was to surrender to the spirit of militarism that is now devastating Europe.

In short, during his term Congressman Bailey has consistently stood for freedom of opportunity, retrenchment in expenditures, lower taxes, unburdening of industries, direct taxation, overthrow of monopoly and the arbitration of international disputes. He has opposed militarism, class legislation, favoritism, special privilege and government by injunction.

When President Wilson recently appealed to the members of Congress to forget their personal political interests and stay at Washington, Mr. Bailey was one of the men who gave up all thought of going home for the purpose of fixing up his political fences. In speaking of the situation in his district recently, Congressman Bailey declared that he believed the people back home understood the issues pretty thoroughly and would far rather see their representative on the job than at home fixing fences. He said:

"If the people of the Nineteenth are satisfied with the President, if they approve his warfare on the trusts, if they sympathize with his successful efforts to keep the country out of a cruel and bloody war, if they wish to fortify him against those who would hamstring him if they could and undo what he has done, then they will see the importance of doing their part in having a Congress here at Washington actuated by friendship and sympathy rather than by enmity and hostile sentiment. Unless I sadly misjudge the people of the Nineteenth, they will not turn me down merely because I am here at the post of duty and doing my very best to hold up the hands of President Wilson in his magnificent fight against plutocracy and privilege. It seems to me that they are too wise, too just and too discriminating to make themselves responsible for returning a man from the Nineteenth to the Sixty-fourth Congress who would spend the coming two years in doing his best to tie the President's hands and to undo all the President has accomplished by the aid of a sympathetic Congress."

"Optimism and Opportunity"

The Studebaker Corporation,

For more than sixty years one of the leading independent manufacturing concerns in the United States and known to practically every farmer in the country, recently issued a business statement dealing with legislation, industrial and war conditions which every voter should read and carefully ponder. The Studebaker Company, of course, is not a political organization, but in politics its management individually is Republican, yet its unqualified endorsement of the President and the Democratic Congress is the view of the business man and the thousands of working men which it employs. The statement is headed "Optimism and Opportunity" and reads as follows:

"As we said in our advertisement of August 16, 'It is very good these days to be an American.'

"During this month our country has encountered a trying experience in which our finances, our foreign trade, and even our domestic business have been disturbed by the sudden and tremendous wars in our ancestral countries.

"Yet we are coming out of it well.

"The President, with his Cabinet and the Congress and the cooperation of bankers and business men called to Washington for the purpose, have promptly and nobly met the emergency by sensible rulings and wise laws, which will largely free our industries and commerce from restraint.

"They have arranged for the issuance of emergency currency, through amendment of the Aldrich-Vreeland Law, under which national banks can obtain all the currency needed for legitimate business.

"They have organized the Federal Reserve Board which will insure the opening of the twelve new Federal reserve banks inside of fifty days, thus giving ample banking facilities for business to every section of our country.

"They have amended the ship-registry laws so that American capital will buy foreign ships, which together with the large number of ships already owned by Americans will fly the flag of the United States and furnish ample carrying capacity for our foreign trade.

"They have opened the Panama Canal, and thus provided shorter routes for our commerce with South America, Australia and the Far East.

"They have under consideration a plan of financing the surplus cotton crop, so that our Southern planters will be enabled to hold their cotton until normal markets are restored.

"The Studebaker Corporation, with its sixty-two years of business experience, its thousands of employees, and its millions of capital invested, appreciates the patriotic work that has been done and the opportunities thereby afforded.

"Speaking from our experience and immediate forecast of possibilities, we feel cheerful and optimistic over the outlook for profitable business and steady employment of labor with increasing developments of foreign trade in neutral countries.

"America is today the clearing house of the world.

"The great nations of the earth are depending upon the integrity of her friendship, the safety and soundness of her diplomacy, the extensiveness of her trade, and the soundness of her finance.

"It is a time for Americans to show their optimism, their patriotism, and their aggressive earnestness.

"The foundations of our national prosperity have been laid too deep and too strong to be seriously disturbed even by so great a catastrophe as the war of all Europe.

"We regret deeply and sincerely that the war must be, yet we are in nowise to blame and are happily far removed from the theatre of activities.

"Friendship we feel for all, and toward all we must remain in both thought and action entirely neutral.

"Our duty to ourselves and our moral obligation to the rest of the world compel us Americans to be up and doing, to maintain a cheerful and hopeful spirit, to operate our industries and enterprises, to pay our bills as usual, and to conduct our affairs generally on conservative but enthusiastic lines."

Popular Mechanics Magazine

Despite the fact that the European war has practically paralyzed scientific research and mechanical achievement and invention in the countries involved, the November Popular Mechanics Magazine contains its full quota of new and interesting material. Fifty-four unusual war pictures, in a special section of the magazine, together with numerous short illustrated articles pertain to the war in one way or another, make up for any lack of other foreign news. Most of the war illustrations are copyrighted views direct from the front. The articles pertaining to aviation deserve special mention. The Shop Notes and Amateur Mechanics departments contain the usual amount of useful, interesting material. A special feature of the Amateur Mechanics department is an article telling how to build a summer resort of poles.

"Don't Stop Mills; Start Them!" is the title of an editorial in the Chicago Herald—and a mighty good title.

To put an old phrase to good use once more, the Wilson administration is best judged by the enemies it has made.

HECKERMAN LETTER

History of Columbus; His Education, Boyhood, Domestic Life, Trials for Voyage and Success at Sea.

Hinton, W. Va., October 19.—October 12 was Columbus day. Every child in America is taught early in its childhood days that Columbus discovered America. This discovery was made over four hundred years ago, but it was only lately that steps were taken to honor the name of the man whose faith in his ideas of the earth never for a moment faltered.

Columbus was born of humble parentage; left school at the age of 15 and worked with his father for a year. During this time he was restless, as he had made up his mind to become a sailor. This was much against his father's wishes. However, he disregarded his father's wishes and made a voyage to Iceland. At the end of his voyage the captain of the boat commended the lad for his excellency in seamanship. We are told that during his spare moments at sea Columbus spent his time in study, for he had, even before he went to school, determined to be "something" on the water. At an early age he mastered the art of drawing charts thus fitting himself for the business as a practical seaman. He became a man of letters of the highest type. His mind grew and he soon conceived the idea that much of the world was unnamed and undiscovered and he began his plans many years later.

He asked the city of Genoa to fit him out with an expedition but they refused. He then turned his plea for help to the king of Portugal, but he also refused and directed him to meet and lay his plans before the Geographical Committee. These men listened to Columbus. They decided that such an expedition as Columbus laid out before them would not be at all practical. They, however, deceived him by sending out a light fleet according to his plans but without his knowledge. This was an insult to Columbus who, when he heard of it, determined to go to Spain.

Columbus was in debt, having spent his all in trying to further his plans. He left Lisbon at night, taking his son with him in order to escape his creditors. His wife refused to accompany him and, it is said, that Columbus never saw her again. He laid his plans before the king of Spain but he, like the king of Portugal, turned a deaf ear to his eloquent explanation of his plans. However, he refused to give up his ideas. In the meantime he was reduced to the lowest poverty, even going out begging for food for his son. When asking for food he had a chance to talk with the Monks about his plans. The confessor to the queen heard his story and at once wrote to the queen begging her to listen to the wonderful story of this man Columbus. She at once answered asking this confessor to bring the remarkable man to her presence. After reaching the queen he was asked what favors he expected. At once he asked for the rank of vice admiral and a royalty of all he should discover besides a tenth of all that should be gained. These favors the king at once refused to grant. Columbus in great despair and dismay then started for France to ask the king of that country to aid him. However, Isabella finally concluded to finance the expedition and the confessor was sent post haste to bring Columbus before her. He was overtaken and brought back to the audience chamber of the Alhambra where Queen Isabella received him. This most wonderful man knelt at the feet of the queen who stood ready to pledge her jewels to raise the necessary funds for the voyage. The king joined in her way of thinking before she hooked her jewels.

In those days men were not so fond of adventure as they are nowadays and it was some time before a crew could be secured. However, a crew was finally signed up. On Friday, August 3, 1492, the little fleet weighed anchor and set out for a world then unknown. A large crowd assembled to see them off and many of the women sobbed aloud, no doubt feeling that they would never see their husbands again. At the time of their sailing Columbus is said to have had quite an air of authority. Although only 33 years of age his hair was white. His habits were said to have been quite simple and he was very religious. As the little fleet sailed to the west 'tis said that Columbus frequently consulted the map which he had drawn himself. This same map is now in the naval museum at Madrid and when your readers visit ye ancient city let them go and inspect it. 'Tis said that it attracts but little attention nowadays.

Soon after being out to sea, the sailors became disheartened and threatened a mutiny, but Columbus quieted them by saying that if they did not see land in a certain number of days that he would return to Spain. A couple days more and two pelicans were seen. This made every one feel good as they surely expected to see land soon, but it was not un-

Suffered Twenty-One Years-- Finally Found Relief

Having suffered for twenty-one years with a pain in my side, I finally have found relief in Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. Injections of morphine were my only relief for short periods of time. I became so sick that I had to undergo a surgical operation in New Orleans, which benefited me for two years. When the same pain came back one day I was so sick that I gave up hopes of living. A friend advised me to try your Swamp-Root and I at once commenced using it. The first bottle did me so much good that I purchased two more bottles. I am now on my second bottle and am feeling like a new woman. I passed a gravel stone as large as a big red bean and several small ones. I have not had the least feeling of pain since taking your Swamp-Root and I feel it my duty to recommend this great medicine to all suffering humanity. Gratefully yours,

MRS. JOSEPH CONSTANCE, Rapides Parish, Echo, La.
Personally appeared before me, this 15th day of July, 1911, Mrs. Joseph Constance, who subscribed the above statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and in fact.

til early in October that their hopes were realized. The seamen on one of the vessels on October 10th picked up a bush laden with berries. A day or two later birds of various kinds were seen. 'Twas on Friday, October 12th, that a sailor saw land ahead. Columbus came on deck and when he saw that he dropped on his knees in prayer. This land proved to be an island called San Salvador by Columbus. Soon, perhaps the same day, Columbus all decked out in gay costume landed and knelt in prayer and took possession of the land by some holy program. The central door of the capitol at Washington tells the life of Columbus in bronze. It was designed by Randolph Rogers, an American, and modelled by him in Rome. This door weighs 20,000 pounds and is 17 feet in height. It is the tribute of the United States to Columbus. Many of the large cities have a memorial to Columbus. October 12 is now and always will be a national holiday when all banks are closed, also all public buildings.

Yours truly,
M. P. Heckerman.

It seems quite clear that the average Republican politician is either bog-tied to doctrine and argument some five years obsolete, or lacks either doctrine or argument of any kind whatsoever. Many of them have opposed the administration's war emergency measures. Yet, for their part, what has been proposed? Not one thing!

Methodist Journal Hits Brumbaugh as Rum Representative

The "Times" Says 20,000 Saloon-keepers Are Working for Him.

Is Tied To Liquor—Would Be Impotent to Aid Local Option in Penrose's Capitol.

Efforts of the Penrose backers to gain a modicum of responsibility for the Republican ticket by coining ministers and churchmen to come out for Martin G. Brumbaugh, candidate of the Penrose-liquor ring, suffered a severe reverse with the appearance of the current issue of the Methodist Times.

In an editorial on "The Saloon in Pennsylvania Politics," the Methodist Times points out that 20,000 saloon-keepers are shouting for Brumbaugh because they know that with Penrose in charge of the capitol the Republican candidate, if elected Governor, would never have a chance to sign a local option bill, even if he were an out-and-out advocate of such a measure, instead of a nominal supporter of liquor reform as a matter of expediency.

The Methodist Times is published in Philadelphia by the Methodist Publishing Association, under an editorial and publishing committee, composed of the Rev. C. E. Adamson, the Rev. G. H. Bickley, the Rev. S. W. Gehrett, the Rev. S. W. Henson and the Rev. Gladstone Holm. Advisory members are Bishop J. F. Berry; the Rev. H. F. Gravatt, New Jersey conference; the Rev. H. C. McDermott, Wyoming conference; the Rev. Rover Watt, Wilmington conference, and the Rev. W. C. Jason, Delaware conference.

SALOON KNOWS NO PARTY

The editorial, in part, is as follows:

"The saloon interests are playing a most important part in the political campaign now impending in Pennsylvania. The saloon-keeper knows no party—he is for himself first, last and all the time. As a body they work together; their forces are never divided. They are never found on opposite sides in a political fight. They mass their forces and support the party which promises the greatest immunity for their death-dealing business.

"In the campaign now on they have elected to support the Republican party. Twenty thousand saloon-keepers are shouting for Doctor Brumbaugh because they regard him as a perfectly 'safe' proposition. They are wise enough to know that with Boies Penrose in charge of the Harrisburg capitol the schoolmaster Governor will never have a chance to sign a local option bill, much as he might desire to do so. * * *

"Doctor Brumbaugh's statement that he is in favor of local option ought to be weighed in the light of his activity in this direction. It must be remembered that such a declaration was not made by him until it was forced out of him by the temperance sentiment of this commonwealth.

"In the light of these facts the temperance forces of Pennsylvania have selected Vance C. McCormick as their standard bearer in their contest for a saloonless State.

"Doctor Brumbaugh is trying by every means possible to dissociate himself from his fellow-candidates on the Republican ticket. As well might the ancient Roman prisoner try to escape from the malodorous and putrifying corpse fastened to his back. Well might he cry, 'Who shall deliver me from this body of death?'

RUM THE SINGLE ISSUE

"The consideration of this most important question should give us pause. The tariff is not the issue in this campaign. That has been obscured by the tremendous demands made upon loom and forge by the European conflict. The consuming theme for the Christian voter is whether the people of this State shall be allowed to decide for themselves whether the saloon shall still be allowed to fatten and batten upon the hearts and homes of the people of this Commonwealth.

"Pennsylvania is in disgrace among her sister States. We are in the rear in all questions affecting the moral well-being of our people. It is high time we awoke out of our sleep. The day of judgment draweth nigh."

In the same issue of the Methodist Times, the Rev. Dr. John Watchorn, writing on the political situation, says

"From the standpoint of temperance reform the political situation in Pennsylvania is in a very perplexing situation, though by no means hopeless. Temperance sentiment in this State was never stronger or than it is today. If it could be unified not only would county local option become a law, but likewise statewide prohibition of the liquor traffic.

"Our success constitutes our peril. To meet the demands of this fast-growing moral sentiment nearly all the important candidates have declared for a local option bill and the amendment to the federal constitution providing for national prohibition. The one notable exception is Boies Penrose, candidate on the Republican party ticket for the United States Senate. For his re-election, every element in Pennsylvania that is vicious, including the licensed saloon, irrespective of party, is lined up and working untiringly to achieve that end. He is assured of 60,000 saloon votes from the Democratic party alone."

Foreign Business Jams American Mills Europe's Struggling Armies Look to the United States for Food and Clothing

Orders for Underwear, Cotton Sheets, Sweater Coats, Blankets, Shoes, Harness, Auto Frames and Trucks Are Showered Onto United States Manufacturers—Will Pay the War Tax Many Times Over.

New York, October 19.—Foreign business coming to the United States in the shape of huge orders for army supplies will pay the emergency tax, which it is now necessary to levy to assure the U. S. Treasury an ample working balance, many times over. This strict neutrality of this country enforced by President Wilson enables the American manufacturers and laborers to reap the benefits of this opportunity.

As summarized by the New York Journal of Commerce, this is the situation:

"Investigation in several leading trade lines shows that within the past month there has been a most encouraging flow of new and extensive orders for such important articles from our American mills as blankets, cotton goods, leather and steel. The war, according to recent indication, has brought to many of our largest corporate manufacturing organizations not a few orders for their products, which will keep them busy in operations for some time at least and in one or two instances establish new records for amounts of materials required to fill single orders. * * *

"The increasing activity of agents or buying contractors representing foreign countries, both neutral and belligerent, according to some trade leaders, has induced a feeling of the greatest confidence for the immediate and near future of our industrial operations, which, in turn, cannot help but exert a beneficial influence toward bringing about general improvement of business in the United States.

"Advices received from Middle West cities show that large orders have been placed by some of the European belligerent nations for leather in large quantities and shoes. The confirmation of rumors concerning the competitive race which is on at the plant of the Bethlehem Steel Company among manufacturers of automobile trucks to win the record orders for such trucks about to be placed through that company for the French and Russian governments has been but one of the many indications of a real boom in export buying which practically every branch of our American automobile and auxiliary trades now believe has begun. The heavy foreign purchasing, it is stated, furthermore, will not end with the close of hostilities in Europe, according to those now participating, but may easily be expected to continue in even far greater proportion after the war than is now being realized. According to one optimistic estimate of the increase in export trade which our domestic manufacturers of automobiles will realize after war concludes, the output of our plants will be quadrupled over the present capacity. * * *

"The textile industries have also come in for a good share of the extra foreign business already necessitated by war operations abroad. Several large New York State underwear mills are now running full and over time, in some cases, on orders received from foreign governments for use of the armies at war in Europe. In addition to the orders already reported on wool underwear, it was learned on Saturday that good-sized contracts of this kind have been placed for men's cotton fleece-lined underwear. The amount is not divulged, but it is known to be large, and enough to keep mills busy for some time.

"Sweater Coat manufacturers have also put in bids for orders of 500,000 garments each from the English and French governments. Orders are expected on this business during this week. Coats costing from $16.50 to $18 a dozen are wanted. Khaki color is preferred, but gray will be taken, it is said. Orders of such size, of course, can not be handled by one or two mills in the delivery time that is wanted, so the business is expected to be parcelled out among a number of mills.

"Additional orders for 20,000 dozen cotton sheets for export are being figured on by mills. As previously reported, orders from foreign governments have already been received on 40,000 dozen cotton sheets. * * *

"The stimulating effect of the war upon local industries is clearly indicated in many other ways. Sharon, Pa., reported on Saturday that the Briggs-Seabury Ordnance Company, which for the past two years has been manufacturing automobile frames and bodies, has received an order, said to be from the French government, for 2,500 auto frames to be delivered within the shortest possible time. The order was placed through the agent of a big New York exporting house and was made contingent on delivery of a certain number of frames within sixty days. The plant has been running at full capacity for several months past, but had practically reached the conclusion of its operations under old contracts when it received the present order from foreign sources."

PRIVATE WIRES TO ALL POINTS EAST AND WEST

It is safe to presume that the Democrats have been supplied with splendid campaign material in the Knox speech and the President's letter. They could not have appeared at a more opportune time. The President's generous tribute to the members of the Sixty-third Congress reminds the country of their fidelity to the public welfare without a parallel in our legislative history. There is neither extravagant praise nor exaggeration in his presentation of Democratic achievements and no more partisanship than the requirements of the case demanded. That his appeal will touch a responsive chord in the hearts of millions of his countrymen there can be no question.

Residents of the Nineteenth Pennsylvania district will hardly fail to note that their own representative is included among those to whom the President pays tribute in his graceful way.

KNOX KNOCKS

Puppet Speech—Republicans Feel They Have Lost the Day by Knox's Knocks.

Special Correspondence to Gazette.

Washington, D. C., October 21.—To state that Republicans in Washington are bitterly incensed toward Trust-Attorney Knox would be putting it mildly. His speech before the Manufacturers' Club of Philadelphia Saturday has evoked nothing but angry criticism. His unwarranted arraignment of the Wilson administration, his indorsement of Penroseism and undeserved praise of Roosevelt's achievements, have dampened the ardor and blasted the hopes of many members who are candidates for re-election and who confidently believed up until his injection into the campaign that they had a good fighting chance.

A Republican Congressman who was elected in 1912 by a small plurality has told his friends that he might as well give up, as he was satisfied that Knox's speech would deprive him of hundreds of votes, which would spell his defeat. He said that it was not alone execrable taste for a former Secretary of State publicly to criticize and attempt to ridicule our foreign policy, but it was constructive treason at this critical period, to insinuate that the administration discriminated unjustly against one of the warring powers. The people know that this is a baseless fabrication and they will resent it by voting for Democratic members of Congress. As a presentation of the issues of the campaign it is considered ridiculous, as an arraignment of President Wilson's policies it can arouse nothing but angry denunciation.

This feeling is general among Republicans in Washington. They are thoroughly disgusted with Knox and the Republican managers of Pennsylvania. A Democratic member from the Middle West, in commenting on Knox's speech, said: "The effrontery of this puppet of the most oppressive trust in the United States to presume to hold a brief for the people and to assume to tell them who they should elect to administer their affairs would be amusing if there were not great reformatory legislation in progress that ought not to be interrupted or relinquished. The speech amply demonstrates that this ex-cabinet officer hasn't a particle of political sense. He lauds Penrose, whom Roosevelt brands as a political outlaw, and praises Roosevelt, whom Penrose denounces as a political ingrate and the servile tool of corporations and unscrupulous contractors. And this, remember, is the speech that plutocratic organs from one end of the country to the other are describing as the most remarkable political address ever delivered. Well, Democrats ought to rejoice. The President's first campaign letter, following so soon after Knox's speech, will have a splendid effect among independent voters throughout the country."
